A perfect trip for this traveler always includes a cooking class. More demonstration than instruction, De Gustibus Cooking School inside Macy's Herald Square gives foodies a chance to learn from renowned chefs and enjoy a coursed meal with wine in a state-of-the-art classroom. It's a cooking show brought to life. Conversely, The Brooklyn Kitchen, near Greenpoint, spices up at-home cooking with its hands-on classes. A recent vegetarian couple's cooking class there transformed the way I prepare vegetables. Cooking classes form multisensory memories that aren't easily forgotten.
